

Iceland Photo Competition During Field Trips: Winning Photo

During the field trips a competition was organised to select the best photograph taken by the participants. As was to be expected, the standard of entries in the photo competition was high and judging therefore difficult. Nevertheless, in the unanimous opinion of the judges, the winning photo was taken by Wojciech Zglobicki, from Poland. A copy of the winning photo is attached.

The photo was taken on the last day, when most of the group were in the hot pool while a small party did the extended walk. The judges felt that the photo encompasses much of what we had seen, including the beautifully stark landscape, volcanism, remnant vegetation, alluvial infill due to accelerated erosion (the figures indicate the scale), and even some terraces and patches of snow.
